5.

Anyone who says you can't do it, doesn't know. No one who says you can't do it, knows that. There's no person on the planet who knows that. No one has the qualifications to say that. Only you know if you can do it or not, or make it or not.

4.

Don't limit yourself. Don't filter the idea down in your head. I think that's the most important thing not to do. Don't give up. Don't get comfortable where you are in the workplace if it's not where you truly want to be. It's a struggle, but if you work hard, something will happen. I know it sounds cliché, but it's true.

3.

Don't ever, ever hold yourself back from what you love to do, because that's something that God has set into your heart and your spirit. And if you don't do it, you're going to regret it for the rest of your life, and it's not something that you want to regret, because your passion's your love.

I feel like maybe in my subconscious, I was afraid of success or pure failure. I think I cared too much in my life about whether people liked me or not. I feel like I didn't root for myself. But the thing is sometimes you go too far to where nobody sees you or knows you or knows what you are doing. You go too far.

I have a title on my arm that says, "Endure, survive." Basically what I take from that title is if you keep pushing and pushing, if you receive all of these attacks at you, all of these people trying to put you down, just ignore it. Just don't give up. You know that you're good enough. You know what you want to do, so follow that dream.
